These three officials of the Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce proudly scaled the ladder to inspect the huge "thermometer," erected at the corner of E. State st. and S. Broadway, which "burst" Saturday when the $180,000 "Bonds For A Bomber" drive went over the top.

SCHOOL BOARD
REORGANIZES

F. P. Mullins Is Re-elected President; Two Teachers Resign

The Salem board of education reorganized at its first meeting of the new year last night by re-electing F. P. Mullins as president and naming Postmaster A. E. Beardsmore as vice president. George F. Koomtz was unopposed for re-election as clerk for a two-year period.

Mullins was opposed for the presidency by John T. Burns, who was nominated by George W. Bailie, new member of the board, succeeding James H. Wilson, former vice president. Burns was unable to attend the meeting.

Appointment of committees was deferred by the president until the next meeting.

Approve Appropriation
A temporary three-month appropriation measure, carrying a grand total of $113,230, was approved by the board in order that it might legally transact financial matters until the county's certificate of estimated resources is received. This is not expected before the first part of March.

A general fund total of $90,730 and a bond retirement fund of $2,500 was set up in the temporary resolution.

The resignation of two school teachers was accepted by the board at its meeting. Appointment of a new instructor was approved. Miss Myrtle Cratty of the faculty of Bliss college, Columbus, was named by Supt. E. S. Kerr to succeed Mrs. William Talbott, who resigned as teacher in the commercial department of the high school. The appointment is effective at once. A large number of

VICTORY IS PROMISED BY FDR;
HUGE PRODUCTION PLAN CITEDGAS SHORTAGE
HALTS PLANTS
IN SALEM AREA

Defense Output, In Some Instances, May Be Affected

SUPPLY DWINDLES
AS COLD WAVE HITS

Length of Fuel Curtailment Period Not Determined Yet

Gas shortages of several years ago, hitting a community usually at the first violent outbreak of winter weather, temporarily embarrassed plant operators and sliced a little off the workman's pay.

A gas shortage today in the Salem area not only is accomplishing these things but also is threatening some United States government defense work.

A large part of the industrial sector of the city faced the threat of curtailed production, or no production at all, last night as a cold wave swept the district, sending the mercury tumbling to a minus 14 reading at 3 a. m.

Officials of the Bliss Co. today were trying to find some solution to the problem, with the prospect that their foundry, which uses gas on the night stretch, would have to go down unless they got some.

If it is forced to suspend, the action will affect production on important government contracts, including such items as tank and bullet machine castings.

The enamel and tub departments were forced to suspend at the Mullins Manufacturing Corp. plant, throwing about 125 men out of work, and officials there were fearful that defense work prospects might be harmed, as a result.

The National Sanitary plant went down at noon and will be down until tomorrow noon, at least, the schedule after that point depending on the prospects of getting fuel.

The blisque and the glost kilns at the Salem China Co. plant were operating at 50 per cent capacity this morning, but whether even that rate would be maintained was questionable, plant officials said. It is entirely possible, they pointed out, that production would have to cease.

The Electric Furnace Co. has not been affected by the gas shortage.

Lisbon Plants Suspend
At Lisbon, the National Brass & Copper plant and the R. Thomas & Sons pottery expect to shut down completely this evening.

Church Will Hold

Series of Services

The Presbyterian church session, with Lee B. Vincent as chairman of the committee, has arranged a series of services for this week which is being observed by churches throughout the world as Universal Week of Prayer.

Services will be held in the church auditorium, as follows: 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, sermon on "What Should Be the Prayer of a Righteous Man?" by Rev. R. D. Walter, pastor. Special music will include a vocal solo by Frances Mae Vincent.

Thursday evening, Rev. C. R. Strobel of New Waterford, a former session teacher in the University of China, whose message will be of special interest in relation to the present Pacific war, and special music by the Haviland choir of the church.

Friday night—Rev. L. V. Bennett, retired Congregational minister, whose subject will be "Prayer." Special music will include a vocal duet by Miss Reba Dilworth and W. Wentz Alspaugh.

Opportunity will be given at each service for the offering of intercessory prayers for men in the armed forces.

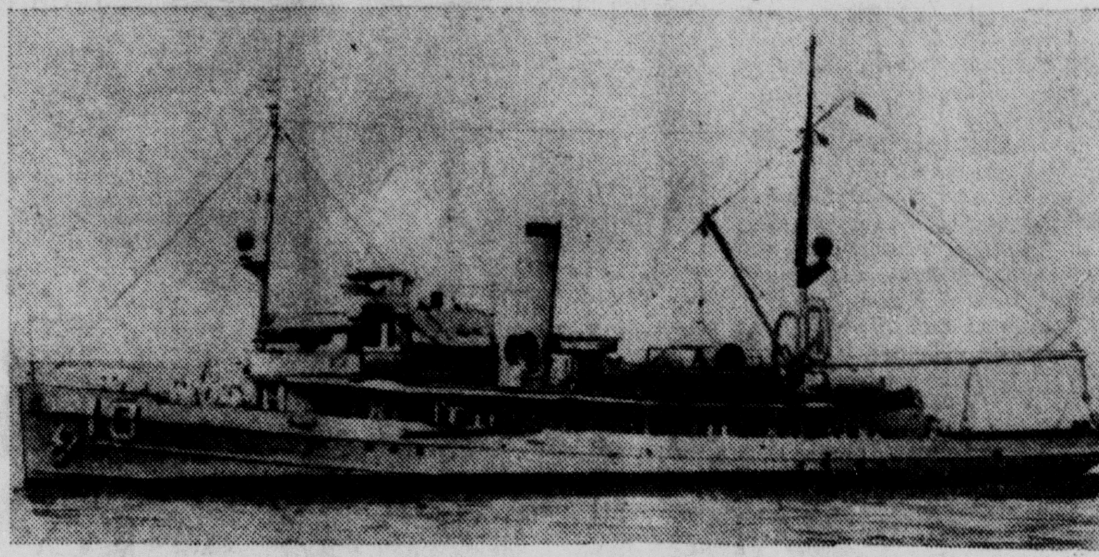

The Wednesday evening service will be concluded in time to permit members of the congregation and others to attend the special program at the Methodist church, where Dr. Walter Van Kirk of New York will speak.

The first service also will be a pre-congregation service, in preparation for the communion service Jan. 11.

A meeting of the church session, regularly scheduled for 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, has been changed at 8:30 p. m. Thursday.

15 Jap Bombers Fail to Halt Tiny Seaplane Tender

The tiny American seaplane tender U.S.S. Heron, her commander, Lieut. William L. Kabler (below) and her crew proved their mettle somewhere in the Far East when a seven-hour attack by 15-jap Japanese flying boats and land bombers was repulsed. Although 46 bombs were dropped and three torpedoes launched, only one bomb took effect and that failed to prevent the Heron from making port safely. The tiny craft took a toll of one enemy four-motored flying boat shot down, a second seriously damaged and several others probably damaged. Kabler was promoted to lieutenant commander.

NAZI CRIMEA
LINES BROKEN

Long - Besieged Garrison At Sevastopol Is Given Relief

(By Associated Press)
Russia's long-besieged garrison at Sevastopol appeared to have broken German lines around that key Black sea naval base today, while Soviet transports boldly attempted to land troops on the Crimean west coast 40 miles to the rear of the Nazi siege armies.

Front-line dispatches said Russian troops had sailed forth from Sevastopol, advancing at a number of points to smash German outposts and destroy fortifications. At the same time, the Berlin radio acknowledged that the Red armies had broken "the German main line" before Moscow—perhaps referring to the vital Moxhaisk sector, 57 miles west of the Russian capital, where the Germans have concentrated powerful forces.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters, indicating that the Russians are now in full command of the Black sea waters around the Crimea, said German warplanes bombed Soviet troop transports off Yevpatoriya, 40 miles north of Sevastopol.

The communiqué said three of the Russian transports were damaged and a protecting speedboat was sunk.

Seek New Toe Hold
It seemed clear that the Russians, already over-running the Crimea in a tempestuous counter-invasion, were seeking to gain a foothold on the west coast where they could trap the Germans by cutting off the escape route north to the narrow Perekop isthmus.

Dispatches to the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Russian troops which landed at Feodosiya, in the eastern Crimea, had reached the sea of Azov, cutting off the entire Kerch peninsula.

Izvestia's correspondent said the Germans tried to shift part of their Sevastopol forces to stem the

Guards, Fire-Fighting Brigades Organized In Industrial Centers As Program Gets Under Way

While their work has not yet reached the point of organizing bomb and rescue squads, the committee of public protection of the United Defense Council of Northern Columbiana County is making rapid progress in laying the groundwork of a program to protect industrial plants and homes throughout this section against fires and incendiary plots.

The initial steps of the committee, which is headed by Mayor Walter Hunston of East Palestine, are being taken by Chief L. Malloy of Salem as vice chairman, have been to organize fire-fighting brigades in all of the factories.

In Salem, for example, the fire-fighting squads within the plants are composed of at least eight men, some brigades numbering higher.

As the shifts change, new fire-fighting squads are on duty, each member having one particular job to perform in the event a fire is discovered.

MERCURY TOPPLES

Reading at 3 A. M. Coldest Of Season to Date; Lancaster Has Minus 16

Salem was one of the coldest spots in the state today as a wave of bitter sub-zero weather rolled across Ohio.

According to records kept at the city's sewage treatment plant north-west of the city, the mercury here slid to 14 degrees below zero at 3 a. m. today. Below zero readings were charted all night long.

The only place reporting a temperature reading below that recorded here was Lancaster, with 16 below.

The weather bureau's forecast was "fair and slowly rising temperatures."

The mercury first dropped to one below zero at 6 last evening, local records show. It was seven below at 8:45 but rose to two below by nine. It got colder after that and by midnight it was six below. At 1 a. m. the reading was nine below, at 2 a. m. 11 below, and then 14 at 3 a. m. It was still eight below zero at 8 a. m.

The highway department reported that, save in the northwest section of the state, all roads were

WORKERS VOTE
HELP FOR WAR

Engineering Firm, 100 Per Cent, Subscribes For Defense Bonds

Employees of the Salem Engineering Co. voted 100 per cent today to subscribe a proportionate share of their regular wages for the purchase of defense stamps and bonds.

The unanimous decision of the workers was reached at a staff meeting at the firm's headquarters on S. Broadway after hearing S. F. Keener, president and general manager of the company, and Collin Doyle, director of engineering and research, urge the employees to invest a share of their salaries "to arm our forces with the weapons they need so that our national freedom might be preserved."

There was no hesitancy on the part of the assembled workers who signified with upraised right hands that they were pledged 100 per cent to allow the treasurer of their company to make regular deductions from their pay envelopes for the purchase of the vital defense bonds and stamps.

In so doing, the workers gave their firm the distinction of being the first industrial organization in Salem to support the defense savings program to this extent.

Announcement also was made at the meeting that, effective today,

TIRE, COMMODITY
CHIEF SELECTED

John T. Burns Named Coordinator at County Meet In Lisbon

John T. Burns of Salem was elected county coordinator of tire and commodities rationing at a meeting of rationing committees and mayors last night in the courthouse at Lisbon.

Burns will be assisted by an advisory board, composed of Mayor O. Earl Greenwalt of East Liverpool, Mayor Walter Hunston of East Palestine, and J. Howard Sinclair of Hanoverton.

Burns was in charge of the meeting, which was opened by Atty Lynn Riddle of Lisbon, county defense chairman. The county coordinator explained the rationing of tires in this county, according to information received yesterday from the OPM in Washington.

The rationing system provides that not more than one-fourth of the quota may be distributed at any one time in the month. Salem's quota for the month will be 24 heavy duty or truck type tires and 20 tubes, nine passenger tires and eight tubes.

The quotas for other county areas are: East Liverpool, 39 truck tires and 32 tubes, 15 passenger tires and 12 tubes; Wellsville, nine truck tires and eight tubes, four passenger tires and three tubes; East Palestine, 12 truck tires and 10 tubes, four passenger tires and three tubes; Columbiana, nine truck tires and seven tubes, two passenger tires and two tubes.

Lisbon, nine truck tires and six tubes, three passenger tires and two tubes; Salineville, five truck tires and three tubes, one passenger tire and one tube; Letonia, three truck tires and three tubes, two passenger tires and one tube; Washingtonville, one truck tire and one tube, no passenger tires or tubes.

The primary function of the directing group is to coordinate the existing facilities and equipment with those of other municipalities in this area.

U.S. and Allies
Will Take War
To Axis Forces

Output of 125,000 Planes, 75,000 Tanks, 35,000 Anti-Aircraft Guns and 10,000,000 Tons of Shipping Pledged In 1943

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President Roosevelt promised congress and the nation today that the war would end in victory and outlined a tremendous, production plan embracing an output of 125,000 planes, 75,000 tanks, 35,000 anti-aircraft guns, and 10,000,000 tons of shipping in 1943.

For this year—1942—he declared that "we shall produce 60,000 planes, 10,000 more than the goal set a year and a half ago," 45,000 tanks, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns and 8,000,000 dead-weight tons of merchant vessels.

In a grimly worded message delivered in person to a joint session of the senate and house, the chief executive declared that the task was hard and unprecedented—and the time short.

He spoke of sacrifices to come and said that it would appear in his budget message tomorrow that "our war program for the coming fiscal year will cost fifty-six billion dollars or, in other words, more than one-half of the estimated annual national income."

"This means taxes and bonds and taxes," Mr. Roosevelt asserted. "It means cutting luxuries and other non-essentials. In a word, it means an 'all-out' war by individual effort and family effort in a united country."

The chief executive mentioned American reverses at the outset of the conflict, but he declared that "powerful and offensive actions must and will be taken in proper time."

United Nations Achieving War Efforts

The consolidation of the United Nations' total war effort against our common enemies is being achieved, the President said.

That was the purpose, he explained, of conferences which have been held during the past two weeks here, in Moscow and in Chungking and was the primary objective of the declaration of solidarity signed in Washington at the start of the new year by 26 nations united against the Axis forces.

"The militarists in Berlin and Tokyo started this war," the chief executive charged sternly. "But the massed forces of common humanity will finish it."

The war cannot be waged in a defensive spirit, the President declared, adding:

"As our power and our resources are fully mobilized, we shall carry the attack against the enemy—we shall hit him and hit him again wherever and whenever we can reach him."

"We must keep him from our shores, for we intend to bring this battle to him on his own home grounds."

Wherever in the world it seems advisable to engage enemy forces, Mr. Roosevelt said, American armed forces must be used. "The operations in some cases are to be defensive and in others offensive with a view to complete encirclement and 'eventual total defeat' of the foes."

Any long range bombing raids on America by "suicide" squadrons of enemy planes from Europe or Asia, Mr. Roosevelt predicted, will be at all the oceans—helping to guard the essential communications which are vital to the United Nations.

"American land and air and sea forces will take stations in the British Isles, which constitute an essential fortress in this world struggle."

"American armed forces will help to protect this hemisphere—and also bases outside this hemisphere, which could be used for an attack on the Americas."

In these terse paragraphs, the President gave a sketchy picture of possible operations of another American expeditionary force and of possible occupation of strategic bases across the seas which otherwise might be used as jumping off places for onslaughts on this hemisphere.

The message was the annual one to congress on the state of the union. At the very outset, the President said he was proud to report that the spirit of the American people was never higher, that the union was never more closely knit together, that the country was never more deeply determined to face the solemn tasks before it.

He outlined the steps leading up to America's entry into the new world conflict and declared that our own objectives were clear: Smashing the militarism imposed by war lords on their enslaved peoples, liberating subjugated nations, establishing and securing freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear everywhere in the world.

"We shall not stop short of these objectives—nor shall we be satisfied merely to gain them and then call it a day," Mr. Roosevelt asserted.

He explained that this time we are determined not only to win the war but also "to maintain the freedom from want and freedom from fear everywhere in the world."

PRUDENCE PAYS OFF

Gov. Bricker is entitled to no "I told you so's" for sitting tight on Ohio's tax revenue surplus. He had no more foresight, perhaps, than the Democrats who had punned to win friends and influence people by dividing up the surplus among the municipalities. But the governor did have what the Democrats weren't interested in having under the circumstances—a sense of prudence.

The result is that at a time when every state in the union has been caught short on prospective revenues by the ban on new cars, tires and other commodities needed in the war effort Ohio has a little something to fall back on. It will need all the surplus and more to see it through the lean years that are on the way. There is no occasion for recriminations, only a great necessity for Gov. Bricker to begin doing in Ohio what must be done in all other state capitals and should be done in Washington; namely, to start cutting expenses to compensate for some of the economic dislocations being caused by war.

OLD STUFF

These fingers over all the good advice about the care of automobiles and tires the aroma of very old chestnuts. Since the first horses stepped skittishly aside to let the first Maxwells grind over the horizon, motorists have known exactly how to take care of their vehicles. In recent years an enormous industry has been built on the care of cars. The service station and the public school have been America's two reliable landmarks. Wherever they stood there also stood civilization.

Of course there were ships twixt the motorists' good intentions and what they actually accomplished. But they always meant well. They never deliberately let the oil get too low, the tires too soft, the water too hot, the finish too rusty, the battery too dry, or the engine too noisy. Those things always just happened for reasons beyond the control of drivers. The delightful thing about the oversight, particularly in recent years, was the way it never seemed to matter much. A few dollars would buy a new tire or a new battery, and when the old bus began to fall apart a fellow with a job could use it for the down payment on a better one. Those were the days.

PROPORTIONS OF A BIG JOB

A report, possibly inspired, from Sweden that German troops and equipment are being concentrated in ports all the way from Narvik to Brest, revives the expectation of British invasion. If Great Britain isn't prepared now to defend itself, it never will be.

The proportions of the job Germany has cut out for itself are vastly greater now than they were when invasion of Great Britain was an imminent possibility. German troops and equipment are being concentrated at key points along the northern coast of the Mediterranean to hold that vital body of water against invasion from Africa. The German army is withdrawing disastrously along a 2,000-mile front in Russia and sooner or later must make a stand. There continue to be rumors of impending action through the Balkans against Turkey. A German army may strike at Gibraltar through Spain. In every occupied country German soldiers are garrisoned on the population to keep order. German soldiers must be stationed with the Italians, Rumanians and Bulgarians to keep them from being entirely ineffectual. Even on the Japanese front it is rumored that Germans may be taking a hand in the attack on the enemy.

JAPAN AND THE GOLDEN EGGS

Car-owning Americans, caught short on their investment in transportation, are catching some of the significance of the acute rubber shortage on the second bounce. Concentration of rubber production in the vulnerable south seas was artificial, a move to centralize control of a vital raw material under a few foreign governments. The last time this country's supply was threatened was in 1928 when Great Britain restricted rubber production in Malaya and Ceylon to boost the price. Promptly, areas outside the artificially created production centers in the south seas began to grow rubber and the scheme fell through.

The same thing is happening now, in a grimmer setting. Japan is going to find itself—hope—in control of the rubber supply of the country that uses most of the world's rubber production. But if that happens, Japan merely will have killed the goose that laid the golden eggs. The United States will have been forced to do what it began to do tentatively in 1928 and should have been doing aggressively ever since. It will be controlling the source of its rubber, instead of trusting to the mercy of British financiers and Japanese militarists.

Rubber production in the south seas may continue for the benefit of someone else, but the United States, if it is capable of learning anything from its mistakes, will get its rubber from a source that can't be cut off at the whim of foreign manipulators.

THE SPIRIT OF SACRIFICES

There is something in American hearts that Adolf Hitler, among others, didn't count on when plans were being made for looting the world. It is the spirit of sacrifice.

Instead of being bowled over by the impact of war, Americans are taking the worst news that comes their way and prepping for worse news later. They are doing this so well in fact, that it bothers some observers. They think there should be a great outbreak of wailing and gnashing of teeth and excitement. They, too, had overlooked America's latent spirit of sacrifice.

This is what is happening: The actual loss of some commodities already and the threatened loss of others is being accepted philosophically. It is somewhat the same attitude that was considered remarkable during the depression years when Americans made a standing joke of WPA owners driving to their projects in automobiles. They realized then that their lot still was relatively good in spite of hard times; they realize now what they are being asked to get along without is as nothing compared with the circumstances of others less fortunate. They are willing to give up all this and more too for the job that must be done if they are to retain any of the privileges they cherish.

They are doing this not in an attitude of self-resignation, but in an attitude of privilege. It actually makes them feel good to think that they are able to give up something to help put their principles into effect. That is the spirit of sacrifice.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, January 7

MOST PROPITIOUS auguries are noted in this day's astral figure with the prospect of fulfilled ambitions both in employment, business and in large or speculative enterprises. In this, superiors and employers should be found ready to lend hearty assistance. However, there are signs of extravagance, waste or loss by imposition, deception or concealed facts. But as the judgment is peculiarly astute and sagacious, this danger of loss may be side-stepped and surprising benefits may accrue.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of splendid opportunity for attaining cherished ambitions in business, finance, speculation or through unusual channels in invention, scientific research, innovations or radical departures from the orthodox and customary. However, there is need to be particularly alert to deception, concealed or misstated facts, misplaced confidences, as well as personal extravagances wastefulness and excesses. Employers and those in high places should be found cooperative in putting over ambitious programs.

A child born on this day should be endowed with exceptional talents and skills, and will be ambitious, over-generous and extravagant.

WHAT IS SO RARE AS A DAY IN JUNE?

FACTS CONCERNING THE COMMON COLD

Dr. Clendening Also Discusses Some Superstitions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE are running into the period of expected frequency of the common cold. One of the few things actually and scientifically known about the cold is that it has a seasonal incidence.

Colds begin to become frequent in October. They do not show very much increase until January when there is a sharp rise in incidence which reaches its peak in the middle of February and then declines until about the first of April. This is one of the few facts that we can say, and say scientifically, that we know about colds.

What doctors know about colds can be summarized very shortly. What they believe about colds is about the same as what you believe about colds—in other words, a hodgepodge of opinions, personal experiences, conclusions and superstitions.

Warnings

Since we are running into the period of expected frequent incidence, it is natural that health authorities about this time of year begin to give out warnings somewhat to this effect: "Look out for the common cold." Just what you do besides look out for a cold in order to prevent it is left more or less in the realm of speculation.

You are advised not to go around people who have colds. This sounds all right on paper, but it would be pretty difficult to find any human habitation in practical life right now where nobody has a cold. Whether colds are catching or not is somewhat debatable. If they are, they are only catching when the affected person is in the very early stages, even before he begins to feel bad enough to emit an occasional sneeze.

Two Weeks to Develop

It is estimated that it requires about two weeks after you have been exposed to a cold for it to develop in your own body. When the cold sufferer is all stopped up and talks through his nose and is coughing and generally miserable, he probably is not in a position to transmit a cold to anybody else at all.

So much for prevention by avoiding contact. What about the vaccines? Well, I pointed out in this column a year or two ago that Dr. Diehl of the University of Minnesota gave a number of students cold vaccines and another group sterile water hypodermically, and in the two groups he found the incidence of colds was no higher among those who had received sterile water than among those who had received the vaccine.

But a doctor friend of mine who gives cold vaccines says that while he feels like a quack when he gives them, his wife insists on taking them and she has even talked him into taking a round every year for the past few years himself. So human nature being what it is, it may help psychologically at least to take cold vaccines.

Keep Dry and Warm
Since colds are definitely seasonal with cold weather, especially sloppy weather, perhaps the only admonitions that really make any sense are the old wives' warnings: "Keep your feet dry and your body warm and change everything from the skin out when you come in from cold, wet weather."

This is probably the same advice Hippocrates would have given if he had been writing a health column in the "Athens Sun," 400 B. C.

BUT CAN HE SWIM?

Here is a man in a bathing suit. That much is fact. The label that calls him a lifeguard is only his own or someone else's opinion. You need to know the fact that lifeguards at this beach must pass strict examinations before they wear the label.

Please get this difference firmly fixed in your mind: FACT is one thing; OPINION, another.

Now every day your newspaper MUST bring you many facts and also many opinions. That is what newspapers are for. That's what the day's news is—the actual happenings and what the editors, the experts, the bystanders and others THINK of what goes on.

From FACT plus OPINION you get the information every free citizen must have to govern himself. The ADVERTISEMENTS in your paper are fact and opinion, too. They are the news of goods and services, backed by the opinions of merchants, manufacturers and the like. From them you get the news that helps you use your own free choice to get the most for your money.

You can't run away from FACTS. And you need OPINIONS of all kinds and from all sides, if you are going to go on living in a DEMOCRACY. But keep them CLEARLY SEPARATED.

Suppose your newspaper lost its right to bring you news of all kinds.

You'd certainly find yourself behind the eight-ball!

On election day your vote would be a blind guess. On payday you wouldn't know what to buy or where to find it. And on the day of reckoning—when you realized how VITALLY NECESSARY an uncontrolled newspaper WAS—you would find your own freedom GONE WITH THE NEWS!

Notice how CAREFULLY a free AMERICAN newspaper separates fact and opinion. It is FULL of dates, names, places, ACTUAL EVENTS. Then it QUOTES many people, credits OPINIONS to the sources from which they come.

Any newspaper in a free country is within its rights when it "takes sides" editorially. But even the most partisan paper gets most of its facts straight and its opinions properly labeled. If it didn't, it would lose the favor and confidence of its readers.

Yet, finally, it is your judgment that counts. You, the free and independent citizen, have only yourself to blame if you will not take the trouble to weigh all the evidence and decide things correctly for yourself.

Your paper pays you the greatest possible compliment when it acknowledges your own intelligence and sound judgment.

In Germany, Italy, Russia, Japan, a government agency decides what the people shall read and hear. Not so in America. So your part to preserve the American way of life.

Read, each Tuesday in this space, the messages about your liberty and how America's newspapers help you defend it. Your letters of comment will be appreciated by the editor and by this committee—Newspaper Publishers Committee, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

Emerald Embassy

by FRANCIS GERARD

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Later that day, Meredith received further information which certainly gave him yet another line to work along with his wife, Juanita, when a long, rakish black cat whisked up the drive to come to a halt beyond their vision at the front door. Soon there appeared a nice looking youngster in an immaculately-cut, double-breasted lounge suit.

"So sorry to intrude, Sir John," said the new-comer in a drawl which might have been Eton-and-Cambridge, and probably was, "but I've been sent down by Colonel Anson of the Special Branch. I've got a report for you which he didn't like to send over the telephone."

From a long, sealed envelope which the young man handed him, Meredith extracted a typewritten report and settled down to read it through. It was about Anne de Vassignac and Prince Salsul and told Meredith little which he did not already know until—the end.

The Prince, though not actually staying in Paul's Hotel, was a frequent visitor. The Countess Anne appeared to be living a perfectly normal life for one of her type. She went shopping, she lunched here, she lunched there, she dined at the Embassy, she danced at the Dardes. Her husband, Monsieur de Comte, went out less being occupied apparently with the preparation of a new volume of poems.

All this Sir John absorbed rapidly and wondered why Colonel Anson had bothered to send the report down at all. It was the last page, however, which made him sit bolt upright and whistle softly through pursed lips.

Among other precautions, the Special Branch had placed one of their men within the hotel at an extension receiver and microphone so that he might make shorthand notes of all telephone calls to and from suite Number 37. Yesterday evening, Countess Anne had called a Suffolk number, Weyland 85. A man's voice had answered. Followed a verbatim report of the conversation:

Countess de Vassignac: Philip? Man's voice: Anne, darling. C. de V.: Philip, cheri, I can't talk for long. But is everything all right at your end? M. v.: Perfectly, except that I'm waiting for those fellows to arrive. I went into Ipswich this afternoon to get my tackle. I say, Anne, how long will I have to stay here, and when am I going to see you? C. de V.: Darling, I don't know. I can't come down to you for obvious reasons. M. v.: No, I suppose not. Oh by the way, Norma was here when I arrived. C. de V.: The stupid little fool! Forbid her to come to the house again. M. v.: I did, Anne, but.... but, you know, it's not very easy for me. C. de V.: Oh, you men are such idiots! You make me sick! I've no patience with you, Philip!

At this point Madame de Vassignac had hung up the receiver. The Special Branch, getting into touch with the Suffolk police, had ascertained that Weyland 85 was the telephone number of Vine Cottage, the property of a Mrs. Saltbridge, which had been leased recently for six months by a Mr. P. Horton of London.

With this to work on, the watchmen at Paul's Hotel went further into the matter and discovered that a Captain Horton had been in the habit recently of calling there to see Madame de Vassignac.

Colonel Anson, of the Special Branch, promptly got in touch with the War Office and learned that about six months previously and prior to publication of the latest Army List, a Captain Philip Horton of the Royal Engineers had been cashiered and dismissed from Service over a matter involving company accounts.

Meredith looked up from the report and said, "There's no reply, except to thank Colonel Anson for me."

When the young policeman had gone, Mrs. Meredith glanced at her husband and said, "You're pleased, aren't you, John, with whatever was in the report?"

"Very much pleased Juanita," he nodded. "I think," he added slowly, "I think I'm going to have a little fun."

"I know your fun," replied his wife, a note of anxiety creeping into her voice. "I hope it doesn't mean you're going to fool around at night with an automatic in one hand and a weighted cane in the other?"

Sir John shook his head. "Nothing so violent or primitive, my sweet. I'm going to dictate a letter."

"Dictate a letter?" she echoed in surprise.

"Nothing more dangerous than that," responded her husband. But Meredith's plan as announced to his wife, which had contemplated a little refined psychological torture, was momentarily shelved when his butler came across the lawn later that afternoon bearing a letter on a silver salver. "This has just come, Sir John, by express post."

The envelope was addressed in that pointed writing usually associated with the femininity of France though it bore an English stamp. Meredith turned it over to open it and across the back of the flap in tiny discreet letters were the words, "Paul's Hotel." He slit the envelope and took out its contents. There were two single sheets of hotel notepaper. Written across the centre of the first sheet upon which his eyes first fell was, "With the compliments of the Comtesse Raoul de Vassignac."

Sir John smiled grimly as he slid the top sheet from its fellow, and then the smile was wiped from his face to be replaced by an expression of astonished bewilderment.

Meredith was looking at two stanzas of what was undoubtedly verse. He read them through slowly. Then he read them again. Then he allowed the sheet of notepaper to dangle from his fingers as he frowned across the garden.

"Juanita," he said suddenly, "I want you to read this aloud so that I may listen to it. Don't be surprised at it. It's in verse. Just read it straight through without any comment until you've finished."

This is what Juanita read aloud:

Go down, Sir John, go down
To these sweet waters of oblivion,
Where fretful pondering and unkind tricks
Of life are scotched and washed away
In the waters of the Styx.
Where grizzly Cerberus defends the door
Beyond the ferried passage from the shore
Of this sad journeying which men call life.
Seek ye fulfillment of your jewelled quest?
Then lend attentive ear to our behest
And seek the knowledge which but lies in death
Beyond the struggle of that lingering breath
Which does but herald in a better state,
Freed from the toils of human love and hate.

Wherein Discovery shall set a term to Strife.

"What in heaven's name....?" began Juanita as she finished reading.

Her husband shook his head. "No, darling, not heaven. It seems to be a suggestion couched in the most dulcet terms for me to go to the other place!"

He perused the two impudent verses of doggerel again and shook his head. "I think that young woman is indulging an undoubted sense of humor at my expense. She must be very sure of herself, very sure."

"You don't think," said Juanita slowly, "that it's a.... clue?"

Meredith stared at her in astonished amusement. "Darling," he began, "why should she....?"

He frowned as he left his sentence unfinished. "By the Lord Harry!" he breathed, "I wonder. If that is so, she must either think I'm a fool or...." He picked up the sheet of notepaper again.

"Go down, Sir John, go down!" he read aloud. "To those sweet waters of oblivion. Where fretful pondering and unkind tricks Of life are scotched and washed away in the waters of the Styx. That seems clear enough," he commented.

"You mean," observed Juanita "or rather she means, that you'll never get your answer in this life."

Sir John nodded. "Looks like it," he admitted. "Let's go on, where grizzly Cerberus defends the door. Beyond the ferried passage from the shore of this sad journeying which men call life. That rather confirms it, doesn't it?"

"It does seem to, on the face of it," acknowledged his wife. "But it's the first line of the second verse that makes me think there may be more to it than just a suggestion that you should go and jump in the lake."

"Seek ye fulfillment of your jewelled quest?" read Meredith. "Well that's plain enough, isn't it? Because it goes on to suggest that I lend an attentive ear to her behest. And seek the knowledge which but lies in death. Of course, it's bilge just fanciful bilge and pretty poor verse at that!"

Juanita leaned across and studied the sheet of notepaper which her husband tilted towards her. She read aloud the last line of all. "Wherein Discovery...." You see that word, John? 'Wherein Discovery shall set a term to Strife'."

"Yes, I know," grumbled Meredith. "On the face of it, if we're to take this seriously, 'I've got to die or go down' as they suggest so charmingly. I wish to goodness I knew Madame de Vassignac better. I'd be in a better position to judge whether it was just spiteful nonsense, or her way of crowing over me from the security of a safe position.... Well, there's only one way to find out."

"How?" asked his wife curiously. "To go and ask her," replied Sir John.

"But you don't suppose she'll tell you?"

"On the contrary. I think she will."

"What's she like, this Madame de Vassignac?" asked Juanita curiously.

"She's very beautiful," replied Sir John.

"Oh," said his wife rather blankly. Meredith threw back his head and laughed.

"Worried about me, darling?" he asked whimsically.

"I still find you attractive." Her voice was serious but her eyes laughing.

Sir John nodded complacently. "So you should," he said. "You're not so bad yourself, you know."

FARMERS TOLD TO CHECK MACHINERY

COLUMBUS, Jan. 6.—Ohio farmers being asked to increase 1942 crops were urged today to purchase needed equipment or make necessary repairs while parts still are available.

"There is a scarcity of farm equipment and farmers should get their orders in at once so that the steel may be allocated," said Elmer F. Kruse, state chairman of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

He indicated that farmers lacking proper equipment might find themselves unable to cash in on wartime production increases anticipated from lands "in the best conditions since 1920."

"During the past six years Ohio farmers through conservation have built up the fertility of the land," Kruse said. "In the present emergency, farmers can afford to draw on that margin of fertility to accomplish the production increase which they're planning."

Although a 20 per cent cut in material for new farm machinery has been ordered, a 50 per cent boost is on the Washington books for repair parts, an AAA spokesman said.

The state defense council has announced that county councils and the farm extension service will furnish farmers with printed check lists to use as guides in examining machinery.

Some counties plan meetings to instruct farmers to make major repairs.

Some 1,200 workers in Chevrolet and Fisher body plants in Norwood, Cincinnati suburb, have returned to work, however.

Mt. Union Dedicates New Student Center

ALLIANCE, Jan. 6.—Mount Union college dedicated the new Student Union building in appropriate exercises in the college chapel Monday. With this new structure, the total of campus buildings and dormitories available for use of the 600 students at this century-old institution reaches 22, exclusive of private rooming houses and apartments.

The newest campus addition includes offices for the Student Senate, the Unionian Annual staff, the Dynamo weekly newspaper staff, and the college Y. M. C. A. Y. W. C. A.; three committee rooms designed to accommodate meetings of groups ranging in size from five to 100 persons, a cafeteria, a lounge, locker rooms for student use, and rooms leased to the Mount Union chapter of the Kappa Delta sorority.

Appointments throughout this new building are of the finest available for student use. Decoration and furnishing of the rooms was carried out under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Purcell Rodman of Alliance and Mrs. Charles S. Grant, interior decorator of Iowa City, Iowa. Plans for the building were drawn up by President C. B. Ketcham following inspection of buildings of the same type on other campuses and including suggestions of students of the college.

Made possible by an anonymous gift of a friend of Mount Union college, the new Student Union building will meet a great need on the campus by providing a center for those extra-curricular activities that develop leadership and personality and enrich the social life of the college. The opening of this new center will provide a central headquarters for commuting students who attend Mount Union through providing a meeting place for them as well as facilities designed to provide a "second home" throughout the day.

Dedication exercises were in charge of Dean Melvin W. Hyde of the college, who served in place of President Kelcham while the Mount prexy attended a government-called meeting of executives of the country's leading institutions of higher education in Baltimore.

HITLER BUSY MAN, SAYS NAZI RADIO

Stays On Red Front: Germans Urged to "Trust In Victory"

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(Official Broadcast recorded by AP)—Gigantic war tasks have kept Adolf Hitler steadily at his headquarters in Eastern Europe except for occasional one-day trips since the German-Russian campaign started June 22. Dr. Otto Dietrich said today in urging upon Germany "complete trust in victory."

The Nazi press chief declared in an article published in all German newspapers that "for six months, that is, since the beginning of the eastern campaign, the fuhrer has been staying in his headquarters in eastern Europe, devoting his life entirely to solution of gigantic tasks confronting the German nation in connection with necessities of the war."

(British dispatches Jan. 1 said that Hitler, who supplanted Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch as the German commander in chief Dec. 19 in response to "an inner call," had flown to Smolensk from Kiev in an attempt to stiffen his central lines.

(About a half dozen German generals were reported in London yesterday to have gone the way of von Brauchitsch for military reverses or criticism of the conduct of the war.)

"The enormous burden of work resting on the fuhrer's shoulders," Dietrich wrote, "made it even impossible for him to spend his Christmas amidst his troops in the front-most front lines, as was the case for the last two years."

(A German radio broadcast Dec. 6 said Hitler had spent Christmas, as usual, among his troops. He was in Berlin Dec. 11 for the declaration of war upon the United States.)

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

By J. E. Pollard, Journalism Professor, Ohio State University

After centuries of use, the public notice has stood the test of time. In countless legal matters the necessity for it has long been taken for granted. It was to emphasize these facts anew and impress the public with the added fact that, if anything, the public notice is more important today than ever before that this series of brief "chats" was written.

To sum up, it might be said that public notices are highly important in at least four ways. They are important to those responsible for their publication, who thereby give due notice of their intentions. They are likewise important to those whose rights are affected or involved by such intentions. They are frequently important in connection with public business and public affairs. And some of them from their very nature might be said to have a negative importance, in the restraints they impose.

Taken as a whole, nothing could be more fatal to our legal and political system than to permit anything to happen to the principle of the public notice and its common use. It is important, therefore, to insist upon full compliance with the legal provisions for public notice in all instances and to extend them wherever necessary or desirable. Only by so doing can public and private rights be properly safeguarded.

Theatre Attractions

A musical comedy, "Blues in the Night," is the State's attraction Wednesday only, with Priscilla Lane, Betty Field, Richard Whorf, Lloyd Nolan and Jack Carson in the featured roles.

A group of talented but unknown musicians with great faith in the importance of the kind of music peculiar to the New Orleans waterfront, which they called "the blues," are the characters in the screen story.

Richard Whorf, a new screen face, is the former Boston boy who appeared in the Alfred Lunt-Lynne Fontaine stage hit, "There Shall Be No Night." Betty Field, young stage and screen veteran, returns to the "buddie" role she first did in films as the ex-girl friend of the gangster who befriends the little band of musicians.

Lloyd Nolan plays the gangster, Whorf the pianist-leader of the band and Priscilla Lane, the vocalist for the group. Two top bands are seen and heard in the picture—Jimmie Lunceford's colored band and Will Osborne's popular orchestra.

Concluding tonight at the State is the Abbott and Costello hit, "Keep 'Em Flying," with Martha Raye, Carol Bruce, William Gargan and Dick Foran.

Ricardo Cortez, long a screen favorite, is starred with Joan Woodbury, Pat Gleason, George Pem-

FEARS NAZIS MAY TURN TO AFRICA

(By Associated Press)
VICHY, Unoccupied France, Jan. 6. — The warning that Germany might occupy French Africa unless Vichy swears back to closer harmony with Berlin was given Frenchmen today in an article filling most of the front page of the newspaper Nouveaux Temps.

It was the most sensational declaration so far in the current anti-government offensive in the Paris press.

Its author, Jean Luchaire, accused Washington of attempting deliberately to provoke such an incident and thus divert Nazi energies through an African campaign. German occupation of French Africa would take several months against the resistance of the French there, he said, and the Nazis would not return it after the war.

Luchaire warned that a victorious Germany might partition France permanently after the war if further provoked.

He said there was a chance of attitude in Vichy which he attributed to a growing French conviction that the war tide had turned against Germany and to backstage intrigues by United States Ambassador Admiral William Leahy, to whom he pictured as a "Mephistopheles" using Petain as his "Faust."

NAZIS' LINES IN CRIMEA ARE SPLIT

Russian onslaught on the Kerch peninsula, only to meet a deadly hail of shells from Soviet warships and coastal artillery and bombs from Russian naval aircraft.

On the central front, the lengthening arm of the Soviet counter-offensive was reported sweeping the Germans back upon Kursk, 28 miles below Moscow and about 100 miles south of Orel.

Soviet dispatches said that Red army troops who routed the Germans from Tim, 40 miles east of Kursk, were advancing rapidly. "The Germans did everything to retain this line," the Russians said. "A unit commanded by Dobrovolsky outflanked the fascists and penetrated their rear."

Leningrad Reports Good
On the Leningrad front, the Russians painted an equally brightening picture, declaring that Red army troops, backed by American-made fighter planes, had recaptured 300 square miles of territory and 20 villages in five days after rushing a German offensive.

The Berlin radio, admitting that the Russians had cracked the main German line on the central (Moscow) front, said heavy losses had been inflicted on the Soviet forces and that German troops had recaptured the lost ground.

Russian troops were reported exerting fierce pressure on the German stronghold at Moshaisk, striking from a 160-mile encirclement to with spearheads at Stenitsa, on the upper Volga 125 miles north-west of Moscow, and Kozelsk, 140 miles to the southwest.

On the North African front, lashing rainstorms slowed operations, but British Middle East headquarters reported that British imperial troops were "successfully active" in attacking German-Italian forces around Agadabia, 90 miles south of Bengasi.

Undisclosed numbers of Axis prisoners continued to flow back to prison camps in Egypt as British forces mopped up isolated German and Italian centers of resistance around Salum, on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.

Reports Artillery Duels
Premier Mussolini's high command said violent artillery duels raged all day yesterday in the Salum area as well as in the Agadabia sector, 300 miles to the west, and reported that Axis planes hammered British troop concentrations.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, Nazi press chief, told Germans meanwhile in an article published in all German newspapers that Hitler had remained steadily at his headquarters in eastern Europe since the Russian war started June 22, without saving for more than one-day trips.

German authorities in Paris reported two more bombings there in addition to that which caused the fixing of a partial 5 p. m. curfew during the weekend. One of the explosions happened in a German bookshop in the Champs Elysees district and the other in a German soldiers' club, the authorities said.

Free French in the recently seized French colony of St. Pierre-Miquelon announced they had no intention of evacuating the islands they seized a week ago, to the embarrassment of the United States state department, which said an agreement neutralizing French Atlantic possessions was violated.

Seizure by the United States of the Panamanian vessel Marconi, at first believed to be an Italian, appeared cleared up with an announcement that Panama canal zone judicial authorities had dropped action to declare her a prize of war.

Hemsley Signs '42 Contract
CINCINNATI, Jan. 6.—The National League Cincinnati Reds announced today that Catcher Rollie Hemsley, acquired from the Cleveland Indians of the American League, had signed his 1942 contract. Terms were not reported.

Althouse Motors Have "Hot" Night, Blitzkrieg Roberts', 64-15

CAVALIERS DEFEAT BUCKEYES; TRADES CLASS TRIMS YPCC

Guappone, Schaeffer Pace Motors To Crushing Triumph

Paced by Bill "Gabby" Guappone and Lee Schaeffer, who tallied 14 points each, the Althouse Motors quieted a weakened Roberts' outfit on the Memorial building court last night to the tune of 64-15. The Motors jumped off to a fast start in the opening period as they grabbed a 12-3 lead which they never relinquished. They kept up their steady bombardment of the hoop in the second chapter and held a 26-6 margin.

They got even hotter in the third frame as they outscored their rivals for Class A loop honors, 16-2. In the final quarter all semblance of a defense by Roberts' collapsed and the Motors ran up the score until the final whistle.

Close behind Guappone and Schaeffer in the scoring column were Sammy Drakulich and Gordy Scullion who hit the hoop for 12 markers each. Drakulich made the only free shots dropped in by the winners all evening.

Gibby Evarhart, former High school star, rimmed five points to pace the losers.

Don Freed tallied five fielders to pace the Cavaliers to victory once more this time over the Buckeyes by 25-19 in Class B. It remained for Dick Ellis, stocky ex-High grinder, to cop individual scoring honors with five buckets and two penalty shots for a grand total of 12 points. Bill Theiss scored nine for the Cavs to assist Freed nobly. It was a fine follow-up win for the Cavs after their upset of Demings last week.

In the other Class B game, the Trades Class received a new scoring threat and came through with their first win of the campaign. They trounced the Young People's Catholic club, 34-27, with Ralph Landwert and Howard Gray sharing scoring honors with 12 points each. Felix Di Antonio scored one less to pace the losers.

Purdue, Iowa Climb In Conference Race

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Purdue and Iowa are profiting happily on the bad basketball luck of Chicago and Michigan, to such an extent that the Hawkeyes and Boilermakers currently are sharing first place honors with Northwestern in the Big Ten race.

The Wolverines have dropped five consecutive games, the last two to Iowa and Purdue. The Maroons have been beaten six straight, the last times by Purdue and Iowa. Consequently Iowa and Purdue, having won two games apiece and lost none in conference play, find themselves in a category contested only by Northwestern, victor in two out of two, and Illinois, winner of its lone league start.

Iowa subdued the Chicago Maroons, 53-39, last night; Purdue conquered Michigan, 35-18, and Northwestern's Wildcats handed Minnesota its first setback in seven games this season, 49-33.

The Hoosiers, meanwhile, rebounding from their 50-40 loss to N. U. Saturday, clipped Wisconsin last night, 38-34, to hand the 1941 Big Ten and National Collegiate champs their second straight conference triumph and their third in a row in all games.

The Peoples Lumber team closed the gap between itself and Fernengel's, the American league pacesetter, by plastering a three-game defeat on the Electric Furnace kiegiers last night at the Masonic temple alleys. Paced by Frank's 206 and Nannah's 203, the winners were never seriously threatened.

The third-place Demings five crept up slightly also as they coped three from the cellar-dwelling Lease Drugs. Lind's 223 and Morlan's 215 helped the winners considerably in the last game when they ran up a 946 total. Stuffer of Lease's hit a 202 to pace the losers.

In the other match rolled last night, the American Laundry shut out Fitzpatrick's, with Donbar rolling a 220 his last game to lead the Laundrymen to victory. Carey of the winners rolled a 203 his second game while Craig hit a 208 for Fitzpatrick's in his last game.

The match between the league-leading Fernengel's five and Firestones was postponed until a later date.

The Quaker City league race became another snarl last night as Althouse dropped its match to Capel's and Arco Paints trounced Gonda's two games. In the matches rolled on the Grate alleys, Capel's scudily battered the leaders, due mainly to the superb play of Dal DeRhodes, who put together games of 222, 169 and 251 for a 642 total. The 251 game gave DeRhodes second high game honors at Grate's last night. George Harroff upheld the losers in the charmed circle with a 208.

The Arcos did some real rolling themselves last night as they hit a 960 total in their first game. Huffer took high game honors with a snappy 257, his initial game; Bob Hiltbrand rolled a 211 his second game, and last, but far from least, Walt Hiltbrand hit games of 274, 181 and 232 for a splendid 627 total, second only to that of DeRhodes. Coy's topped two from the third place Golden Eagles, with D. Smith rolling a 211 to pace them; the Masons shut out the Polo Club, and the Quaker Orphans, formerly the Salem Motors, took a pair from Bliss. P. Myers of the Masons crashed the 200 circle with a neat 232 his opening game.

A match between the Lape Hotel and the Hawk Motors was postponed.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(Wide World).—At least two of the proposals the football rules committee has under consideration were tried out in the southwest last fall.

In a good many college games subs were allowed to report to any official instead of just to the referee and witnesses say it kept things moving right along.

Coach Warren Woodson of Hardin-Simmons used intra-mural games to try out the stunt of allowing a scored-on team to have its choice of goals and thinks it worked well.

Pete Reiser will get the J. Louis Comiskey memorial award as the outstanding 1941 rookie at the Chicago baseball writers' dinner tonight.

Then he'll probably have to explain what he was doing on a stage fixed up like an old-fashioned saloon.

California papers claim Chicago is in too big a hurry about bidding for the National Amateur golf tournament, scheduled for Pebble Beach, Calif.

Revelations, Inc.

In his stories in the Cleveland Plain Dealer on the career of Larry Lajoie, Eugene J. Whitney reveals that the Indians' first "cry baby" act took place in 1907, when Larry was manager.

Several players decided in mid-season that the club ought to have a new pilot and when First Baseman George Stovall was suspended after a run-in with Lajoie he complained to President John Kilgiff.

The complaint didn't get far.

Will fight Louis' Way. Says Brother of Fistianna's Madcap

By SID FEDER.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 6.—Jacob (Buddy) Baer is a simple soul with a simple philosophy.

So when he sits down for a chat and tells you, matter of factly, that he can't see what he has to worry about from Joe Louis, you have to come pretty close to believing him.

He tells you this, mind you, in a tone about as worked up and tense as a fellow asking "Please put a head on my beer." The big guy is no more scared than a Wake Island marine.

This is definitely not a fighter giving his courage a shot in the arm with big talk. It's not brother Maxie Baer, loud-talking for weeks before his big flop-eroo with Louis and then resting on one knee shaking his head as the referee asked him to get up. I'm Buddy is afraid of what might happen in Madison Square Garden Friday night, then he ought to have Barrymore's profile—because he's every bit the actor.

"Will Fight Louis' Way"

"Look," he explained today as he started tapering off for his second crack at the heavyweight title. "I took Joe's Sunday shots last May and I'm still alive. Right? Well, then, knowing that, all I have to do is go in there and toss punches, or, if Joe tries to make a boxing match out of it, I'll dance right along with him. Only if it's that kind of a thing. It's going to be a real stinkeroo."

One way or the other, there's going to be quite a gathering of folks giving it the double-o. Promoter Mike Jacobs wouldn't be at all surprised if the Garden bulges its walls housing some 20,000 customers for this tea-party. Right now, he's shooting at a gate of more than $200,000.

Of this, the navy relief fund will be the big winner. Mike and Joe are giving their shares, and Buddy, who figures to need a little ready cash for arnica and assorted liniments after it's over, is turning in a good chunk of his cut.

No one except a fellow named Buddy Baer is giving Buddy Baer much of a chance of making the Bomber's 20th title defense his last.

Japs Lose 52,000 at Changsha

Chinese family at Changsha... war refugees

According to the Chinese high command at Chungking, 52,000 Japanese were killed and wounded at Changsha in a three-day battle around the Hunan Province capital. Of this total, the Chinese claim Jap casualties numbered 30,000 in one day's fighting. The picture above, showing a Chinese family resting by the roadside after their home had been destroyed during a previous Chinese-Japanese engagement, was taken near Changsha.

FRESH BLOW DEALT NIPPONESE FLEET

Destroyer Sunk, Warship
Hit In U. S. Bomber Raid
Off Davao

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — The hard hitting reappearance of U. S. bombers over the south Pacific gave the capital double grounds for elation today—a fresh blow had been dealt units of the Japanese fleet, and if offered evidence that American aerial reinforcements were arriving in the Far East.

There was a definite feeling that the united nations soon would be in a position to give a better account of themselves in the sky fighting. This expectation was encouraged by London reports from volunteer corps there with a two-day bag of 68 enemy planes at the cost of four of their own.

Jap Destroyer Sunk For results, the No. 1 exploit reported in the final U. S. communiqué yesterday was the work of the army bomber flight which blasted an enemy destroyer to the bottom of Davao bay in the Philippines.

At least seven enemy planes were hit by terrific anti-aircraft fire from the fortifications of Manila bay during a four-hour air attack, the War department reported today.

The fortress of Corregidor Island and the forces of General Douglas MacArthur were attacked by 50 planes yesterday, the department said, but material damage and casualties to the defenders were called light.

The big thriller, however, was the stirring battle put up by the U. S. S. Heron, a small seaplane tender, which fought off a seven-hour attack by 15 Japanese bombers in the Far East. She destroyed one four-motored flying boat, badly damaged at least one other, and was able to make port safely despite one bomb hit.

For the courageous way he fought his ship, Lieutenant William Leverette Kabler, the skipper, was awarded the navy cross and immediately promoted to lieutenant commander.

Between the Heron and the success of the army bombers, attention was momentarily distracted last night from the grim, all-but-hopeless last stand General Douglas MacArthur was making on Luzon with his battle-tired American and Filipino veterans.

MacArthur, according to the last reports, was continuing to give an excellent account of himself, maneuvering his badly outnumbered troops so as to force the Japanese to resort to costly frontal assaults for every inch of ground gained.

Little Hope for MacArthur Yet The reappearance of American bombers in the south Pacific theatre promised to increase the price the enemy will have to pay for the Philippines. However, there was no indication of an improvement in MacArthur's local situation.

The communiqué announcing the bomber attacks on Japanese warships off Davao was the first mention of American air activity in the Philippine area in many days. Previous advices from the islands have intimated broadly that the strength of the defending air force had been steadily whittled away by combat losses and ground bombing until it was all but wiped out. Moreover, Japanese advances have accounted for all the known major flying fields both on Luzon, the largest island, and on Mindanao, the second largest.

The belief here, therefore, was that the army bombers probably were operating from bases in the Netherlands East Indies, or possibly from fields on Australian-mandate islands.

Netherlands authorities have been stressing the damage that could be inflicted on the enemy from East Indies bases if additional planes were rushed to that theatre. Prime Minister Churchill replied a week ago with the pledge that Britain and the United States were going to the aid of those colonies. Yesterday's raid was the first indication that the initial installment of assistance already had arrived.

From a naval point of view, the most important result of yesterday's Davao raid were the three direct hits scored on one of Japan's battleships, for it tended to reduce the temporary advantage the enemy gained by the sneak attack on Pearl harbor.

One Japanese battleship already has been sunk off the Philippines, a second was "effectively bombed" and badly damaged, and now a third has been damaged.

The class of the Japanese warship hit in yesterday's raid was not disclosed. The two previous victims of U. S. bombers in Philippine waters have been ships of the kongo class, which predate the start of the World war. Japan apparently has not risked her newer dreadnaughts to support operations against the Philippines.

Bailiff Is Sworn In LISBON, Jan. 6. — James G. Stevenson was sworn in as assignment commission and common pleas court bailiff yesterday following his reappointment by Judge Joel H. Sharp. The appointment is for one year.

The salary for assignment commissioner was set at $1,200 annually and the compensation for bailiff $840 per year.

The Spaniards established the first permanent colony in New Mexico in 1598 at San Gabriel.

WORKERS PLEDGE WAR ASSISTANCE

Engineering Firm, 100 Per Cent, Subscribes For Defense Bonds

The wages of all Salem Engineering Co. employees was being raised, with an added compensation promised to all workers who are still on the payroll at the end of the current year.

"Give 'til it hurts," officials of the firm pleaded in urging the purchase of the defense certificates. They explained that the money actually is an investment for the workers themselves. "You're not giving the money away," they said. "Our flag is symbolic of our national unity. Doyle told the engineers, craftsmen and other office workers. 'Let us stand united to do our part, each and every one of us.'"

Doyle, whose association with the Salem company began yesterday, has been technical director of a number of small arms plants being built in the west, for which the local firm has built a number of heat-treating furnaces.

Holman to Keep System

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Nat Holman, basketball coach at City College, isn't going to change his coaching system just because Western teams romped over metropolitan fans in holiday doubleheaders at Madison Square Garden.

"Their one-handed shooting and galloping up and down the floor sure got results," said Holman, whose team lost to Wyoming, "but until New York high school coaches change their styles of teaching I'm going to insist that my boys use two hands. It's too late to make the change after they are in college."

MOTOR INDUSTRY CONVERTED TO WAR

Doubling of Output Over
Peacetime Production
Is Demanded

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — The one-day-old automotive labor-management committee started converting the entire motor industry to war production today under government orders to double its output over the peacetime rate.

With the appointment of the joint committee by the Office of Production management, labor stepped into a new and significant role in the military production scheme—that of a co-equal of management in a war industry's relationship with the government.

Five Men From Each Side Five men from each side of the industry's economic fence were named to the group which will develop plans to pool tool and plant resources for production of planes, tanks, ordnance and war-essential machine tools on a redoubled scale. The OPM may approve, revise or reject the plans, which must provide for production of about six billion dollars worth of war goods this year as compared to less than half that value in automobiles during pre-war years.

Ranging in a makeup from the presidents of huge motor firms to sub-chiefmen of the CIO and AFL, the committee was expected to choose a chairman at its first meeting today.

It was selected from members of the industry advisory committee and the labor advisory committee—both which groups will continue to function—by OPM Director William E. Knudsen and Associate Director Sidney Hillman. Knudsen told yesterday's day-long meeting of labor, industry and government representatives that automobile firms and workers must expect civilian motor car production to be halted entirely about Jan. 31.

War Orders Must Be Met

This action was inevitable, Knudsen said, because the industry must handle five billion dollars worth of additional war and navy orders, and speed-up 1942 deliveries of military items so that five or six billion dollars worth will come off assembly lines this year instead of the previously scheduled two and a half billion dollars worth.

There was a difference of opinion on the ability of the industry to do the job. C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, told reporters after the conference that while his company could start production on the new orders "within a few weeks," he doubted whether the industry could achieve five billion dollars in war production in the 12 months.

It was learned also that in the closed session Wilson proposed that passenger car production be continued beyond January 31 to avoid severe dislocation in the industry.

The OPM last night set passenger car production quotas for the present month at a total of 204,848 cars, instead of the 102,424 announced in December.

Glycerine which is needed in making war equipment comes from cocoanut and palm oils. Leaving soap as a by-product.

EDUCATION BOARD IS REORGANIZED

F. P. Mullins Is Re-elected
President; Two Teachers Resign

pupils are reported enrolled in the commercial classes this term. The immediate resignation of Walter F. Regal, teacher and music instructor at the Junior High school, was accepted by the board. No successor has been found. The superintendent disclosed that he may lose the services of two other instructors, James Campbell and Clyde Thomas, who were scheduled to take examinations today for entrance into the army air corps.

Approval was given by the board for the Salem Red Cross chapter to use a number of classrooms in the High school for the purpose of conducting classes in first aid. Three representatives of janitors employed in the public schools appeared before the school board to request increases in wages to meet the rising cost of living.

They were told that the school board is still in financial straits, which so far have prevented a return of the 10 per cent salary cut imposed on the teachers awhile back. The board promised the janitors consideration if at all possible during the coming year.
